Friday, Remnant Day,

As it rained the best part of the day last Friday, we sold compara-tively few "Remnants," so shall place on sale this Friday the accumulation of Two Weeks, making this the largest collection and unexceptionally the best opportunity to & ecure genuine bargains ever of fered any previous Friday.

Many houses wait until the end of each season before marking down the Short Lengths, Remnants, etc., of that season's goods. A house in another city three days ago advertised 5,000 Remnants. We have not more than 500.

We do not allow them to ac-cumulate. We mark down and self each succeeding Priday that week's accumulation of Short Lengths, Odd Sizes, Broken Lines, etc., in every department while in season, in style, and consequently desirable. No mill Remnants, nor machinesolled goods, but ends of new seasonable fabries.

Customers will find it to their interest to visit our establishment Friday, May 29, "Regular Remnant Day," which has now become an Established Bargain Day, A Universal Shopping Day. The Busiest Day of the week. Why?

Because our customers aspreclate buying desirable Short Ends, Odd Sizes, Broken Lines, etc., at the reduced or "Remnant" prices, which they me offering.

"Short Lengths" of Seasonable Wash Goods:

For the past four days the sales in this de partment have reached hight-water mark, far surpassing that of any previous season. This is not only gratifying to us, but a convincing proof that our customers appreciate the prevailing low prices inaugurated by us.

As a part reciprocation we shall offer un precedented "Remnant Day" bargains in Short Lengths" of Ginghams, Percales, Lawns Satteens, etc. Cus tomers will be fully repuld n visiting this department on Friday, regular

As a special inducement we shall sort out a choice lot of 121/2c Ginghams, in elegant Checks, Stripes and Plaids, and mark them at a "Remnant" Price of 8c per

(Second floor; take the elevator.)

"Short Lengths" in Domestic Goods.—A splendid opportunity will be given Friday customers to secure excellent values in Short Lengths of Bleached and Brown Muslins, Crashes, Flannels and Cretonnes, which, considering the low prices at which they were already marked, are exceptionally good bargains.

31 "Short Lengths" of 36-inch Cottons. 14 "Short Lengths" of Pillow-case Cotton, from 1 to 5 yards.

9 "Remnants" of 10-4 Sheetings. 21 "Short Ends" of Linen Crashes, lengths 1 to 3 yards.

THE COLORADO DEMOCRATS. President Cleveland Gives Them a Piece of His Mind. A delegation of Colorado Democrats came out of the White House yesterday afternoon with flushed faces, dejected visage and hearts bowed down. They had been the recipients of a sound drubbing at the hands of the President, who had not hesitated to speak his mind with the force of a pile-driver. They had called on the President in search of an office, but they had hardly squared themselves to speak before Mr. Cleveland reminded them that they had already recommended two men for office, one of whom turned out to be free files, one of whom turned out to be unworthy and the other to have served a term in the penitentiary, "These men were appointed," said the President, "at your carnest solicitation, Now, how can I believe anything you Colorado Democrats say?" And with an impatient gesture the delegation was wafted gently into the open air, to cool off at their leisure.

This morning Mr, William Stapleton, editor of the Booky Momatain News, the only daily Democratic paper in Colorado, was found at the Elbitt and questioned as to the seene at the White House yesterday, "I was not there myself," said he, "and have no certain information as to who composed the delegation. But I can say that there are certain persons here from Colorado, claiming to be representative Democrats, who are not entitled to that distinction, and I presume the President has run afoul of some of them. Our representative Democrats, who are not entitled to that distinction, and I presume the President has run afoul of some of them. The public were not generally aware that he had an unfortunate habit of going on a brief spree about once every year, and hence he was indorsed and recommended by the best people of Colorado, who regret his conduct here. The other appointment to which the President referred raised a howl of indignation all over Colorado, and I cannot believe it was recommended by any Demorat in that State. In 1875 he took charge of the New York Som bureau, but returned to the Herald in the fall of 1877 and has been us regular correspondent here ever since.

During the negotiations for the treaty of Washington the Herald was the medium through which a number of important state secrets were made public, to the great annoyance of President Grant, who thought some one was conspiring to defeat the chief ambition of his Administration, and openly charged Mr. Preston with aiding the conspiracy.
